2018 Annual Report

The Jed Foundation

Together, We're Helping Our Nation's Youth Grow Into Thriving Adults

WELCOME!

The transition to adulthood is increasingly difficult for young people. Alarming new data shows that in just six years between 2011 and 2017, the number of 12 to 17 year-olds experiencing a major depressive episode in the past year grew more than 60% to 13.3%. Fortunately, there are proven approaches to protecting the mental health of young people, and The Jed Foundation (JED) is leading this work.

JED works every day to equip teens and young adults with the mental health skills and support needed to thrive. We let them know that it's OK to speak up if they're worried about themselves or a friend. We work with their campuses and communities to create approaches and programs that prevent issues like depression, substance misuse, and suicide. More than 3,000 schools are currently using JED resources to support their students' mental health. All told, our programs are now educating, empowering, and supporting over 25 million people, and our reach and impact are growing.

- Reflecting on our accomplishments in 2018, we have a lot to be optimistic about:
- Today's youth are more willing to talk about mental health; and across society, there is a growing shared understanding that there is no shame in struggling with mental health challenges;
- JED's national campaign, Seize the Awkward, has been viewed by more than 17 million people, and research shows that youth who are aware of Seize the Awkward are significantly more likely to talk to a friend about their mental health;
- Our Equity in Mental Health Framework, which we co-developed with the Steve Fund, and which guides colleges on how they can better support the mental health of students of color, has been accessed by thousands of campus leaders since its release in late 2017.
- We are helping hundreds of high schools, colleges, and universities create and implement comprehensive plans to protect the mental health of their three million students.

Mental health challenges are widespread, and yet, because of a lack of understanding and acceptance, they can often isolate the people and families affected. JED's work is dedicated to breaking down the barriers that prevent people from giving and seeking help and creating informed and supportive communities where a young person's mental health distress can be recognized and addressed. Through major public educational campaigns, like Seize the Awkward and evidence-based school programs, such as JED Campus, we are reaching young people where they are - online and in schools - and providing comprehensive mental health education and support that improves and saves lives.

Thanks to the generous support of our dedicated community, JED is helping millions of students navigate the teen and young adult years with the knowledge, guidance, and support they need to manage mental health challenges. As we look ahead, our goal is to make this experience the norm for young people in diverse communities throughout the country. Together, we can create communities that support mental health and prevent suicide among our young people and help them look to the future with a sense of confidence and optimism about their ability to care for themselves and others.

Thank you.

OUR STORY

Phil and Donna Satow lost their youngest son, Jed, to suicide in 1998. Although suicide was, and continues to be, the second-leading cause of death among young adults, schools had no uniform model for preventing suicide on campus. In 2000, the Satows founded The Jed Foundation to launch a blueprint for suicide prevention. Today, JED is the nation's leading organization dedicated to young adult mental health.

Our mission

JED is a nonprofit that protects emotional health and prevents suicide for our nation's teens and young adults.

Our vision

We envision a future where:

- Teens and young adults are equipped to navigate mental health challenges, to seek and give help, and are emotionally prepared to enter adulthood and fulfill their potential.
- High school students are emotionally prepared for the transition to college and adult life.
- Every college student attends a school with a comprehensive system to support mental health.
- Our communities support the emotional well-being and mental health of teens and young adults.

WHY JED IS NEEDED

Young adulthood is a time of growth, learning and exploration. A time to start building a life of one's own, and to feel excitement about the future. Yet for many of our nation's teens and young adults, transitioning into adulthood can be a time of significant changes and intense challenges.

We see the effects in the headlines every day: a death from binge drinking, an overdose, a suicide. These tragedies are complex and their warning signs often subtle, but with the right support and safety nets, many lives can be saved.

That's why The Jed Foundation was created. We are the leading nonprofit dedicated to ensuring our country's teens and young adults get the emotional support they need to navigate life's challenges. We're partnering with high schools and colleges to strengthen their mental health, substance misuse and suicide prevention programming and systems. We're equipping teens and young adults with the skills and knowledge to help themselves and each other. We're encouraging community awareness, understanding and action for young adult mental health.

With your support, JED is helping our nation's youth grow into thriving adults.

Stigma may have tried to keep me silent about my adversities and experiences, but seeking and accepting support is what makes it possible for me to be on this stage, to use my voice to speak up about mental health.

Matthew Argame, 2017 Honoree, JED's Jerry Greenspan Student Voice of Mental Health Award

The Scope of the Problem

- One out of every four young adults age 18 to 25 lives with a mental health condition.<sup>1</sup>
- Suicide and accidents — including prescription drug overdoses and alcohol poisoning — are the two leading causes of death among our nation's teens and young adults.
- 60% of first-year college students wish they were better prepared emotionally for the transition out of high school.<sup>2</sup>
- At some point during the past year, nearly 2/3rds of all college students experienced “overwhelming anxiety,” and 42% reported feeling “so depressed it was difficult to function.”<sup>3</sup>
- 12.1% of college students<sup>3</sup> and 17% of high school students<sup>4</sup> reported having serious thoughts of suicide in the past 12 months.

OUR APPROACH

We believe in a comprehensive, public health approach to promoting mental health and preventing suicide. JED's programs are grounded in our Comprehensive Approach to Mental Health Promotion and Suicide Prevention, developed in collaboration with Suicide Prevention Resource Center (SPRC). This evidence-based model can be used to assess efforts currently being made on campus, identifying existing strengths and areas for improvement.

Our three areas of focus

- We help schools evaluate and strengthen their mental health, substance misuse and suicide prevention programs and systems to safeguard individual and community health.
- We develop expert resources and create powerful partnerships to ensure more teens and young adults get access to the resources and support they need to navigate life's challenges.
- We educate and equip students, families and communities to know when and how to support others who are in distress or struggling with a mental health issue.

We are all responsible,
collectively, for our nation's young people.

Carol Quillen, President, Davidson College

Higher Education

JED supports and empowers campus communities to strengthen student mental health, substance misuse and suicide prevention efforts. This work with colleges and universities is grounded in the evidence-based practice of our Comprehensive Approach to Mental Health Promotion and Suicide Prevention. In addition, JED collaborated with The Steve Fund to develop the Equity in Mental Health Framework, a set of recommendations focused on the mental health and well-being of students of color. JED supports schools through advising support, communication and education programs as well as through our signature programs within higher education, JED Campus. JED Campus is designed to guide schools through a collaborative process of comprehensive systems, program and policy development with customized support to build upon existing student mental health, substance misuse and suicide prevention efforts. JED Campuses embark on a four-year strategic partnership with JED that not only assesses and enhance the work that is already being done, but helps to create positive, systemic change in the campus community.

Joining JED represents a tremendous opportunity for the College to implement a campus-wide approach to mental health promotion that will help lead to a safer campus, healthier students, and illustrates the College's commitment to a holistic approach to student success.

Lee Pelton, President, Emerson College

High School

JED is continuing to grow its High School Programming with a focus on emotional preparation for the transition from high school to college to adulthood. JED's key high school program is Set to Go (settogo.org), which launched in 2017. Set to Go guides students, families and high school educators through important social, emotional and mental health considerations related to the transition out of high school to college and adulthood. Set to Go is reaching at least 500,000 teens and parents with essential information and resources about emotional health and well-being. A new Set to Go curriculum will be piloted in several high schools across the country and JED resources are reaching 1,700 K-12 schools in New York City through a partnership with the Department of Education's School Mental Health program, The Mayor's Fund to Advance New York City, and ThriveNYC. We will also develop a Comprehensive Approach to Mental Health and Suicide Prevention for High Schools. This framework will provide a series of recommendations for schools on how to approach mental health and suicide prevention and form the basis of the technical assistance we provide to them. In addition, in partnership with the Healthy Minds Network at the University of Michigan, we will develop a Healthy Minds for High School survey, the first national survey instrument to assess the prevalence of mental health issues among high school students and gain insight into their attitudes about mental health.

OUR PROGRAMS

Youth and Community Campaigns and Education

JED develops public education campaigns, expert resources and powerful partnerships to ensure more teens and young adults get access to the resources and support they need to navigate life's challenges. We strive to educate and equip students, families and communities to know when and how to support themselves and others who are in distress or struggling with a mental health issue. In partnership with Ad Council and the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP), JED launched a national campaign, Seize the Awkward (seizethawkward.org), that encourages teens and young adults to start a conversation with a friend who may be struggling with mental health issues. Other programs include:

- Love is Louder (loveislouder.com): An online community working together to build a world where we all feel connected and supported.
- Uline (ulifeline.org): A mental health resource center for college students that provides information about emotional health issues and the resources available on their campus. It also offers a confidential mental health self-screening tool.
- Half of Us (halfofus.com): An award-winning program from JED and MTV featuring a library of free-for-use videos including PSAs, celebrities and students talking about their personal experiences with mental health and substance misuse.
- JED Storytellers (youtube.com/jedfoundation): Each year, JED trains individuals from all over the country who have been affected by mental health to share their authentic, inspiring personal stories to let others know they are not alone and help is available.

The JED Storyteller Training taught me to dig deep into the core of my mental health narrative and share the authentic truth of what I survived. I had the freedom to be vulnerable, and I was surrounded by encouraging trainers and peers who gave me a sense of safety and belonging.

Imade Borha, JED Storyteller

OUR EXPERT RESOURCES

JED produces and disseminates trainings and resources to support college professionals including:

Campus MHAP

This resource helps college and university professionals develop a comprehensive plan to promote the mental health of their campus communities as well as support students who are distressed or struggling emotionally.

Balancing Safety and Support on Campus: A Guide for Campus Teams

Developed by JED and HEMHA, this guide helps campus professionals understand all the factors that should be considered when creating a behavioral intervention team.

Postvention: A Guide for Response to Suicide on College Campuses

Created by JED and HEMHA, this guide helps colleges and universities effectively and sensitively respond to campus suicide deaths, should they occur.

For a complete list of JED programs and resources, please visit: jedfoundation.org/programs

It's daunting, but there is a lot we can do to improve the environment around young people, and to give them the skills and support to thrive.

Executive Director and CEO, JED

OUR REACH AND IMPACT

JED's mental health and suicide prevention programs serve millions of students across thousands of colleges and universities nationwide. In just the last year, we have:

Helped schools implement safety nets

- More than 3,000 high schools, colleges, and universities have strengthened their safety nets for students by using at least one resource from JED.
- More than 250 colleges representing over 2,800,000 students are JED Campuses, working with JED to improve their mental health, substance misuse and suicide prevention programming.
- JED educated nearly 7,000 college, high school, and other mental health professionals in suicide prevention through conference presentations and webinars.
- More than 1,600 colleges and universities utilize JED's ULifeline.org online resource center to provide students with information about mental health and how to seek help.

My class started with college preparedness and financial aid and expanded to mental health discussions with self-care, emotional supports, healthy relationships, and safety themes. Students developed bonds through sharing and have shown great improvement in discussing their emotions and demonstrated the ability to communicate with others from a variety of different backgrounds.

Jay Mahannah, Teacher, Morton High School

Equipped and empowered young adults

- Over one million people are better informed and prepared to care for their mental health, or that of a loved one, because of information from JED's online resource centers.
- JED meets young adults where they are, with nearly 450,000 engagements with JED content through social media, nearly 44,000 followers on Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook, and a total of 2.6 million social media impressions.
- Since its launch in 2018, Seize The Awkward had 17 million views, with 800,000 "likes", and 10,000 shares.
  - Teens and young adults who are aware of Seize the Awkward are more likely to have talked to a friend about their mental health, and more likely to have called or texted a mental health hotline.
- JED's anonymous mental health self-evaluator was used by nearly 40,000 students to assess their symptoms or their friends' symptoms to receive customized information about how to seek help.

One of the things I struggled with when I was dealing with my depression and anxiety was this feeling of being alone. I felt like I was the only one dealing with it all. This program brought together some of the strongest, most amazing people I have ever met and helped forge a community through the simple act of sharing our stories. That validation goes a long way in the journey of healing.
